

Data Governance for Law Firms

DATA MANAGEMENT & DATA GOVERNANCE
DEFINITIONS

A SIMPLE DATA MANAGEMENT AND DATA GOVERNANCE STATEMENT

Iron Carrot has worked with several law firms over the last few years. We know that it's always easier to have people comment on a draft than to try and start the discussion with a blank page.

Using our experience, we have come up with a simple statement that you can adapt for your firm with that in mind.

Data Management is the collective term for all the operational activities that collect, store, look after, protect, use, archive, or destroy internal and client data.

Data Governance is the strategic cross-functional coordination of data objectives, accountabilities, and responsibilities to support transparency and clarity of (predominately) the firm's data in support of the firm's strategy.

This statement makes the distinction apparent. Data management is what gets done, and data governance is why and who is doing it.

DO YOU NEED HELP WITH DATA GOVERNANCE AT YOUR LAW FIRM?

Innovative law firms have big goals for improving the client experience through data innovation. The problem is that many law firms struggle with a lack of data maturity and alignment between their strategic objectives and the siloed reality of their data.

We have developed a unique data governance road-mapping solution to help law firm leaders launch the proper foundation for data governance through our extensive law firm background.

Our five-step road mapping process quickly helps law firms create a complete framework and plan for assuring the governance and quality of its data to realise the strategic goals.
